Recent events in Germany and Austria reveal the danger of allowing political organizations to drill and parade in uniform.

The disadvantage of being a dictator is that you have to continue to dictate if you want to continue to live.

No man is a hero to his own valet and no one is a dictator to his own stenographer.

Hindenberg made a great reputation for the battle of Tannenberg, but Winston Churchill declares he arrived just in time to snatch the credit from another General whose name we forget.

He was a great man nevertheless, and his name exerted influence and authority not only in Germany but also in Britain and France. His removal leaves Hitler in full power and Europe in grave doubt.

He was an old man and retired when the war broke out in 1914. (He was a captain in the Prussian army in the war against France in 1870). Yet he survived many of the younger war commanders—French, Haig, Joffre, Foch, Botha, Currie. He and Ludendorff were a formidable combination.

Another Bulk Oil Station
Opens in Vulcan

North Star Company Moves Warehouse and Tanks from Kirkcaldy

Right-of-way in the C.P.R. yards to the east has this week been a scene of activity. A crew has been busy installing the warehouse and tank of the North Star Oil Company, moved here from Kirkcaldy. The layout includes a large warehouse, a smaller office building and a large double storage tank. All were moved from Kirkcaldy by flat car; the buildings in sections. Erection was rapidly made, and on Wednesday the tank was being placed in position on specially built steel rests. The North Star closed out their business at Kirkcaldy early this year and at that time decision was made to open a bulk station at Vulcan. It is understood that H. Johnston will operate the station here.

This makes the sixth bulk oil station for Vulcan. The British-American, Regal, Texaco, Canadian Oils and Imperial, along with the North Star, make a lineup that will soon vie in competition with the elevator row for number of businesses.

Rains Halt Threshing Operations in the Vulcan District

Monday Rain—Stops Threshing and an All-Night Rain Wednesday Evening and Thursday Morning Bring Complete Halt

Threshing rigs were humming in the fields of the Vulcan district on pouring in at the elevator row. On the evening of the same day .1 of an inch of rain fell and operations were at a standstill on Tuesday. Some threshing was done late in the afternoon, but no combining was attempted. On Wednesday everything was at full swing again, the elevators rushed with load after load. Late in the afternoon the sky clouded and near six o'clock a heavy rain fell throughout the district. Intermittently rain fell all evening and a drizzle continued into this morning. The crops are completely drenched. Work will not start again for several days, even with the hopes of the rain stopping at the time of writing.

Hail Damage Surveyed

Since last week a survey of the district southeast and southwest of town shows that the hail storm on Tuesday last was a costly visitation. Canadian press reports show the damage extended in an area ten miles wide and fifty miles long. Severe damage was reported in the Nanton-Cayley and Champion-Carmangay districts. The report estimates $500,000 damage done. Locally the storm cut a strip through Kirkcaldy, Alston and Brant territory, varying in width from three to ten miles. The fields were ripe for harvest and in most cases the binders and combines were working in the fields when the storm hit. Among the farms hit with varying losses from 25% to 100% were: J. Hagerman, D. Clements, S. Lewis, J. Johnston, R. Middleton, Percy Clark, E. Lilly, Galbraith Bros., C. Zahnd, J. Hutton, B. Brown, Al Kennedy, Allan Fisher, Morris Lyman, Fred Bennett, Andy Larson, R. Irvine, and a host of others. The storm was a freak in the fact that one field would be hit 100% and the next field would escape lightly. No reports of insurance being carried have been heard at the Advocate office. Some of the best crops in the district were affected and many yields were expected over twenty bushels. Fortunately many of the farms had grain cut and in stooks. Damage in the stooks was not as bad as to the standing grain. The loss of a year's work is heartbreaking. A heavy wind combined with the hail and a heavy rainfall followed. The hail piled to great depths and the lands were running with water for many hours following the storm.

First New Wheat Shipped

Agent Lyle Jones, of the National Elevator, reports the first shipment of new crop wheat from the Vulcan "nine in a line." During the last few days three carloads were shipped from this elevator.

Fair Yields Shown

Crop yields in the Vulcan district are varying greatly in the various sections. Crops to the north of town are proving disappointing and the yield, as well as the grade, would appear to be the poorest in this section. Isaac Jacobson finished threshing on his home place on Monday and reports an average of 11 bushels, grading No. 4. Other yields in this section have been reported better, one running 17 and another near 20. The best crops of the district are in the Reid Hill territory, yielding from 17 to 25 bushels. The grade in this section is also better, several No. 1 grades being reported. South and west of town, in parts not hit by hail, the yield is proving better than to the north. The grade is not so good as the Reid Hill crops. Elevator men say that most of the grain will grade No. 3 and No. 4 this year, but will not yet agree to the average yield of the district, as yet. Some say 17, others between 12 and 15.

Some Smutty Wheat

The elevators report an increase of smutty grain. While visiting the elevators the other day the Advocate reporter was shown several samples of wheat that contained smutty kernels.

Farmers—pay your subscription arrears now under the Advocate wheat plan. Look at the label on your paper to ascertain the number of years in arrears and mail us a storage ticket under the schedule of grades shown elsewhere in an advertisement in this issue.

MISCELLANEOUS SHOWER

Mrs. Peter McIntyre and Miss Reta McIntyre were recent hostesses at a miscellaneous shower honoring Mrs. Bruce Crabb, nee Juanita Skatrud. The rooms were decorated with gladioli and sweet peas. Little Miss Joyce Dahl, niece of the bride, and Gordon Marshall made an attractive small bride and groom, presenting Mrs. Crabb with a decorated baby carriage filled with many lovely gifts from over fifty assembled friends. A dainty lunch was served by the hostesses. Misses Sybil and Lorraine Fitzpatrick, Bertha McIntyre and Margaret Horn assisted in serving.

Local News Items

Mr. and Mrs. N. Dwigans and family, of Ensign, will shortly move to Vulcan and take up residence in the Love property, recently vacated by the Friesen family.

Mrs. H. J. Maber entertained at a delightful supper party on Saturday evening in honor of Mr. Stan Mais, who has been transferred to the Granum branch of the Canadian Bank of Commerce. Later the party went to the home of Billy Wright, where dancing was enjoyed until an early hour. Mr. Mais' position here will be filled by Mr. Johnston, of Coaldale.

Mrs. F. M. Anderson was called suddenly to Regina, Sask., two weeks ago due to the illness of her mother, Mrs. P. Storey. She arrived in time to see her mother before she passed away on Tuesday, August 14th. Mr. Storey survives, as well as four daughters and four sons. This is the first break in the family and Vulcan citizens will sympathize with Mrs. Anderson in her bereavement.

Mr. S. Wegh has placed on sale recently in Arrowwood the well known Pantry Queen Flour, manufactured at the Vulcan Flour Mills. This Vulcan-made flour is gaining in popularity as the years pass and is on sale in practically every town in the south section of the province. Another popular product of this mill is the Wheatlets, an item that is noticed frequently in advertisements in the newspapers of other towns. Other products of the mill find a ready market. The Vulcan Flour Mill helps greatly to give publicity to the town, and in this way appreciation should be shown through patronage.

C. "Pat" Beach—employee of the provincial department of agriculture in connection with the recent grasshopper poisoning campaign in Vulcan territory, was very seriously injured in a terrific automobile crash in Calgary early Sunday morning. One person was killed and several were injured in the accident, which occurred on the Bowness road. Mr. Beach suffered a fracture of the pelvis bone, ruptured urethra, and severe shock. His condition is reported as serious, although it is expected that he will recover. He is a patient in the General Hospital. His Vulcan friends hope for recovery that is speedy.

An interesting vehicle passed through Vulcan on Wednesday last over the railway lines of the C.P.R. This was the Sperry Railway Service Car, a car about the size of a large street car and operated by gasoline power. This car can detect any flaws in the rails of the roadbed, and has delicate instruments for this purpose even so sensitive that the human eye cannot see the defects in rails that it marks. The equipment automatically paints each defective rail and the section men travel the line, immediately taking out the old and replacing with new ones. Many rails were found with defects in the run over this branch.

W. C. (Bill) Rodney had as guests for a few days his father and mother, Mr. and Mrs. M. C. Rodney, of Melbourne, Australia. Later they left for Calgary and are now visitors in the city. Mr. and Mrs. Rodney are making a tour of the world and recently made the cross-Canada journey after visiting the World's Fair at Chicago. After visiting in Calgary they will travel on to Banff and other mountain resorts, later going to the coast. They will embark from there to the island of Hawaii and will visit a son in China before returning to their home. Mr. Rodney has an important post with the International Harvester Company.

Vulcan Schools Will Open September 4th

Work on New School Building Rapidly Advancing—Will Be Ready for Occupancy School Opening

Vulcan Public and High Schools will open for the fall term on Tuesday, September 4th. Students have shortly over a week in which to enjoy the remainder of the two-month vacation. An increase in enrollment is expected over the last term, and the new two-roomed school to take care of the crowded condition that has prevailed during the last two years is rapidly being completed. The building is of frame construction and has two spacious rooms. Lighting has been a well thought of feature in the construction, and the windows being provided will provide ample light. Lighting has been one of the bothersome things about the old school building. The building has a full-size basement, and will be heated with a hot air furnace. Entrance to the building will be from the south. Large cloak rooms are being provided near the entrance. The school will be equipped with the best of school supplies. On Sunday many citizens, from time to time during the day, made inspection of the building and favorable comment was heard on the construction. At that time the roof was being placed, and the shingling started.

The personnel of the staff that will teach in the ten rooms, thus provided, will be the same as last term, with two exceptions. Mr. R. E. Pederson, of Retlaw, will be on the High School staff and Mr. O. Doney, of Brant, on the Public School staff, being an increase of one over last year. Other members of the staff will be: Principal Irvine, Mr. D. A. Allred, Misses Cameron, Bantin, Smith, L. Fair, A. Cook, and G. King.

Mr. and Mrs. Lee Smith and family, of Fort St. John, B.C., are visitors in the district with relatives. After a short stay here they will motor to the coast for a holiday at Vancouver and Victoria. For a number of years Mr. Smith operated the Smith Coal Mine in the Champion field, before moving to Fort St. John, where he is farming.

A number of friends of Junior Harbuck gathered at the home of Mrs. Munro on Wednesday evening and tendered him with a farewell party. The evening was a jolly one and much fun was had. ### EARNED BUT NOT RECEIVED

This has been a season of vicissitudes, with Nature asserting her supreme control more emphatically even than usual. Those who will reap their harvest, have earned every dollar they may get. But unfortunately there are many who have earned, but will not receive. The recent hail storms have served to point the fact, sometimes overlooked, that when man goes into partnership with nature in production, he is only a junior partner with minority control. She may set at naught his most valiant and unceasing efforts, or she may carry him triumphantly to success. He has no security of the future, when he sows his seed. His daily toil is sweetened by faith and possibly the law of averages. It is doubtful if there is any other industry in which the uncontrollable hazards are so great and it is doubtful if any other industry would work and strive so conscientiously, with the threat of uncontrollable hazards forever hanging over it.

But, not knowing the end from the beginning, the farmer labors conscientiously to bring his fields to harvest. He fights weeds and soil drifting. In certain cycles he wages unrelenting battle against grasshoppers. He stands helpless before the visitation of drought or frost. And eventually there comes the season of reaping, if any.

Last week in this district, with the binders standing in the fields, hailstorms wove their erratic course over a portion of the country, picking and choosing amongst the crops—destroying the season's labor for one man, leaving his neighbor still intact. It was an experience terrifying, awe-inspiring, and profoundly disheartening for those who were laid low.

There was nothing to choose amongst these farmers in faithful service. The man who will now reap nothing, toiled to preserve the virtue of his land—and indirectly that of his neighbor—in destruction of weeds and destruction of pests. His every effort was constructive and in the interests of good citizenship. He labored not only for himself, but for the general welfare of agriculture in the district. And his expenses never ceased. Yet one half hour of implacable Nature, could wrest from one man his just reward, and leave his neighbor untouched. That is farming.

There is a terrible injustice in such results. Man cannot alter the ways of Nature, but when he is at her mercy he is at a special disadvantage, and it would seem that this should receive some general recognition.

After the difficulties of the past few years, few farmers felt that they could carry the personal burden of insurance. Whether this economy is well based or not, is difficult to say, but in some instances it was sheer necessity that found them without protection when the blow fell.

It is certain that farm losses through acts of Providence are felt in the life of all industries of the Dominion. Would the Federal Government be justified in introducing some form of insurance that would be borne by the State? This would open up a vast field of hazards, including drought, soil drifting, insect pests, hail, frost, etc. It might lead to more public servants, and a costly web of machinery. It might raise a cry from fishermen and others, who live only through the goodwill of nature.

But with the cruel experience of a portion of our farmers freshly before us, it does seem unfair that the occasional individual, through no fault of his own, should be allowed to suffer complete and devastating loss, without some form of state protection.

JOHN REDPATH DOUGALL

John Redpath Dougall, 93 years of age, editor and publisher of the Montreal Witness, is the last surviving editor of pre-Confederation days. Until the past few weeks, he has contributed steadily to the editorial columns of the Montreal Weekly Witness reaching and influencing his myriad readers with the continued clarity and staunchness of his views. He is one of Canada's great men, and though the shadows of night are falling upon him, he has fought a great fight and his name will be an imperishable beacon in the journalistic world.

The history of the Witness and John Dougall are clearly etched in the life of Canada. He has lived for the week and thereby earned the enmity of the strong. Through his paper John Dougall has entered the homes of five generations of Canadians, and his hold upon the hearts and minds has never relaxed. He has been indomitable in holding to any stands which he deemed right. At times in his history, all political groups have been lined against him, and he has been a consistent foe of all exploiters and selfish interests. Many a time he has felt the financial cost of supporting a principle, and his entire personal estate, together with that of other members of his family has been poured into the maintenance of his independent journal. Not only that, but in 1922 when a clarion call went forth to his subscribers, explaining the serious financial crisis of the Witness, almost 4000 of his readers contributed the necessary $25,000 to keep the Witness in publication.

He has been curiously brave in his fights. Located in Montreal, a Protectionist and Conservative city, the Witness has stood aggressively for free trade and true Liberalism. In the heart of a brewing and distilling centre, he has fought for Prohibition. In a province in which prejudices of race and creed were dominant, he has striven for the wiping out of such barriers.

It has been one of his stimulating qualities that he has never been content with living in the past. He has pressed forward, seizing and weighing any new ideas that might serve toward the advancement of Canada. In the past few years, the cruel spectre of unemployment, and the country's subservience to power and wealth, have brought a steady bombardment from his trenchant pen. In his life and in his writings, one thought has always been uppermost—the cause of the humble people. He is one of Canada's greatest and most honorable men.

FRONTIERS OF FEAR

Mr. Stanley Baldwin's phrase about Britain's frontier on the Rhine has captured not merely the House of Commons—which voted a 50 per cent. increase in air armament—but also the imagination of a world rapidly becoming air-minded. But are its implications fully perceived?

It is hailed as setting up a novel theory of national defense for Britain. Actually it is not so new. Why were British troops at Blenheim and Waterloo? Why was Britain a guarantor of Belgium's neutrality before the war? Why did Haig fight for every inch on the Somme? Because for decades Britain has sought to defend herself as far from home as possible. And has considered the channel ports her doorstep.

As to permanent policy, Mr. Baldwin has not so much announced a new concept as he has pictured an old one in terms of the air. We have a spectacular phrase from a most unspectacular man. But what a lovely toy for jingoists! There are those in every nation who would be glad to use the phrase as base for an expansive concept of national defense. Let nationalistic fears begin to stake out frontiers on any such lines and they would soon mix the map of Europe into a pretty pudding.

Switzerland, for instance, would border aerieally on the Saone, the Moselle, the Danube and the Po. And if Britain's defense must begin at the Rhine, does Germany's start at the Humber and the Marne? And will Japan be endangered until she controls not merely Vladivostok but both banks of the Amur?

Of course Mr. Baldwin intended no such use to be made of his words. And the fact that he mentioned the Rhine was more significant as indicating the directing of possible attack than as measuring the distance to its base. Yet he was talking about airplanes. And if civilian populations get to thinking that their air frontiers reach to every place from which an aerial attack might be launched against them, one of two things will happen. Either they will turn in terror to armament races such as we have not yet dreamed of or they will recognize that this sort of thing cannot go on and will really organize peace. Mr. Baldwin's picture is virtually that of neighbors pointing sixteen inch guns over their backyard fences.

Preposterous but tragic! It is really the old anomaly of overlapping claims and of one nation's "security" being its neighbor's insecurity. But perhaps putting wings on it will not only increase the overlapping but illustrate it more visibly and help the peoples to see just how preposterous it is. When frontiers of fear go so far afield, the position becomes intolerable unless we also enlarge the borders of friendship. While still retaining a right sense of nationalism, we can extend our love and loyalty to fellow men beyond national boundaries. We can work toward the day when the Rhine will be no more a frontier than is the Hudson.—Christian Science Monitor.

FIRE LOSSES

Again the season of fire hazards is upon this country, sweeping here and there through brush lands. The fire losses of Canada have been a matter of comment in British papers, with many of the losses attributed to tourist carelessness. Many centres of population, hemmed in by wooded mountains, live in trepidation of the fire that may be left smouldering by campers, and our own foothills ranchers keep a wary eye on all who travel over or sojourn on their lands.

Experience apparently, is not a lasting instructor, as most of the destructive forest fires would go to show, and it is the continuing heedlessness of the passing wayfarer that brings into being all the restrictive laws.

These laws will grow in severity, until all wooded areas are inaccessible to the public, unless there is a more conscientious individual effort to safeguard the forests. The loss of timber is a very important factor in the drying up of streams, which in turn has a far-reaching effect on farm lands. Forest fires cause loss, not only to human life and the lumber industry and to natural sightliness and beauty but also an indirect loss to agriculture. And because these annual losses are so heavy and so easily averted, the Forestry department conducts a constant campaign for forest protection.

It will be noted that so far this season, the Forest Reserves have not been closed to the public, but there is strict regulation that no open fires will be allowed in that area west of the railway track. Camping is not prohibited, provided proper precautions are taken and proper equipment is used. But one person's carelessness in the matter of fire, may cause immense loss of life and property, and is certain also to curtail the privileges of the many thoughtful campers.

CREDIT IS PRECIOUS

"A bill is an indication that someone has had faith in your honesty," runs a message on a blotter sent out by the Calumet Index of Chicago, a message that continues in part:

"A bill indicates that someone who knows you depends upon your honor to keep the word you pledged when you received the goods which he furnished. It is an honor to receive a bill the first of the month. Your creditor may owe for the goods he has sold you. He extended credit on the assumption that you would pay him in time to meet his obligations to his jobber. If he fails to make cash payment to his jobber, he must issue his note at interest.

"If you never received a bill, it might indicate that your credit was worthless; that no person trusted you; that you were held in such 'poor' esteem by those who know you that none of them has ever been willing to take your word that you would pay.

"Credit is the most precious thing you have. Credit comes only through years of honesty and prompt meeting of bills when they are due."

VISITING BRITAIN

Mrs. Roosevelt, mother of the United States President, who is visiting Britain, has been taken to the nation's heart. On her arrival recently at Southampton, she received a great welcome. And London newspapers next day were loud in her praises. One of her sayings which greatly amused most of her British hearers was upon the objections to being a President's mother. One of the minor objections to being the mother of a President, Mrs. Roosevelt declared, "is that no one ever dreams of saying that my son is like me. People always tell me how much like my son I am—as though he had anything to do with it!" Someone described her as a charming ambassador whose smile and bearing might well be copied by official diplomats in search of friendly relations.

"Weel, weel, my dear, so ye hae Scottish bluid in ye!" he exclaimed, when apprised of the relationship. "That gies ye a Scottish conscience. It won't keep ye from sinnin', it'll just keep ye from enjoying it!"—Stewart Edward White.

A sailor had saved his Captain from drowning.

"Tomorrow," said the Captain, "I shall thank you in front of the entire crew for your act of bravery."

"Don't do that," said the sailor, "they'll half kill me."

Doctor: Did you open both windows as I advised?

Patient: No, I have only one, sir, so I opened that twice.

Mr. and Mrs. Donald Gauntz are rejoicing over the arrival of a baby girl, Dona Jean.

Mrs. T. Hyde entertained at a very delightful tea on Wednesday in honor of Mrs. Duvigans, who is leaving shortly to make her home in Vulcan.

Word came on Monday of the birth of a baby boy to Mr. and Mrs. Art Southgate, of Lancer, Sask. Mrs. Southgate before her marriage was Christine Elk of Vulcan.

Comments on Worlds Events

of Liberal as well as Conservative leaders.

The new Premier of Alberta has no fault to find with federal plans for relief, being assured that Mr. Bennett will deal fairly by Alberta. There is no evidence that Mr. Bennett will discriminate against any province. The district in greatest need will be given the greatest measure of relief.

There are no people more hospitable than the people of Nova Scotia. They take pleasure in entertaining the stranger within their gates and they do it handsomely and graciously as everyone will agree who has ever had occasion to visit that friendly province. No wonder Ramsay McDonald and his daughter enjoyed their stay there and go back with fond recollections of their visit.

Herr Hitler is embarrassed by the plaudits of the Nazis who brought about the death of Dolfuss, but his own action in killing his enemies in Germany probably embarrasses him still more. An autocracy qualified by assassination stands on a very unsound foundation for it can be terminated by the very means taken to keep it from being terminated.

A German critic says that although Hitler is a busy man, he is not really a consistent and consecutive worker. No wonder. Training will tell. Hitler was originally a paper-hanger.

Justice and Sentiment

A Quebec Judge says that local sentiment has something to do with the administration of justice; that what will go in one province will not go in another. The official answer to this would be a denial, yet what the Judge says is true. A general law, like the Lord's Day Act for example, must be administered with due regard to local customs and sentiment. Other general laws are framed so that municipalities may have local option, and even these local laws must have some flexibility to permit the Canadian Corps reunion, or any other reunion, to function. This flexibility can only be applied by human officers and a benign magistracy.

Unhappy Precedents

Fear is expressed that Hitler may have himself proclaimed Emperor. Such a thing has been done more than once but the precedents are not auspicious. Napoleon I crashed at Waterloo and Napoleon III at Sedan. The experiment is less likely to succeed in Germany where the people take their Emperors neat—undiluted by plebeian blood. Hitler may not be scared by French precedents and if his ambition points that way he can become Emperor. He is a poor sort of dictator who cannot control ballot boxes, and make himself consul or chancellor or emperor by popular vote.

RUSSIAN WHEAT SITUATION

(Annual Average Wheat Production 880 Million Bushels)

It is estimated that since 1916 the population in Russia has increased by at least 25 million persons, which means that Russia's annual requirements of wheat are at least 125 million bushels per annum more at this time than they were in 1916. Her production of wheat in 1916 is not accurately known, but it can be said with fair accuracy that the average annual production for the past two or three years has been very little, if any, greater than it was before the War in 1913 and 1914. Thus it will be seen that Russia easily requires all the wheat she is now producing for the use of her own people. Russia, therefore, should not be, on the average, a serious competitor in world wheat markets.
